Happy Thanksgiving,

The release of Download Tracker has gone well. There have been no reported errors and it has been downloaded a good number of times. We decided that there was too much content on this site about it, and there needed to be more info yet, so instead of overcrowding this webset even more we bought a new website. Because DownloadTracker.com is taken and there are several other programs out there under that name that perform similar tasks we renamed the project to DLMonitor, you can visit us over at DLMonitor.com for more information, updates, how to's etc. It is still being updated with all the information we have but most of what you can find here can be found there. Once we have completely built the site we will remove all content on this site related to the new DL Monitor.

We will still be using the same forum so you won't need to recreate your username and password.
